

FATHER OF THE WORLD

A poem by: Abraham Jagba, February 7, 2022

By the River Bank of life I wait
 I wait and observe the creatures dine
 Within the river I drop my hook and line
 The hook and line of my dream and vision
 Till Mother nature makes room for provision
 The flesh of my flesh, my own rib
 On the hook is the bait of opportunity, time, patience, pain, sweat, cold, heat and dime
 Waiting for unborn children's
 From dawn to dusk I wait
 When it rains I wait
 When the sun scorches I wait
 It happens at its own time
 I wait on, my focus on the hook
 Perhaps the biggest fish sees my hook
 Takes in the bait and gets locked
 Thank God it was a big fish in the pan
 There and then would it profit my tarry
 There and then would it profit my weary
 There and then the world has its benefits
 Tell MaMa I am waiting
 Tell PaPa I am still waiting
 Waiting at the river bank of life
 My hook and line in my hand
 My dream and goal in the river's hand
 To give me the biggest catch
 For the longest watch
 But with much surprise
 That was a bouncing baby boy
 The world rejoices for the joy
 Happy Birthday DADDY
 MUCH LOVE INDEED GREAT FATHER
